L-3 Avionics Systems (AS) has reached agreement with Extant Components Group, Inc. and their wholly owned subsidiary Symetrics Industries, for the sale of its SkyWatch product line. The sale includes SkyWatch 497 TAS and SkyWatch 899 TAS and TCAS-I Systems along with associated accessories.

Customers seeking to purchase, or in need of information or support for any of the listed products, may continue to work directly with L-3 Avionics Systems during the early stages of the transition, or may contact Symetrics directly using the information listed below. L-3 and Symetrics will work closely together to ensure a smooth transition experience for our customers.

Under the terms of the Agreement in place between L-3 AS and Extant, L-3 AS will continue to manufacture and repair the listed products during an interim transition period while the products are relocated to Symetrics facilities in Melbourne, Florida. It is expected the full transition will be completed within the next ninety (90) days.

Symetrics Industries was founded in 1962 and manufactures and repairs complex electronics and avionics assemblies for military, commercial, and business and general aviation operators. The company’s product portfolio features a range of communication, control, sensing, imagery, instrumentation, and display systems and LRUs including Data Modems, SatCom Systems, Integrated Instrumentation systems and displays, stand-by Attitude and Directional Gyros, specialized aerospace electronic controls, VHMS, Digital Video Recorders and related imagery solutions.

Symetrics is approved under 14 CFR Part 21, Part 145 and EASA Part 145. They are also certified under AS 9100 Revision C and ISO 9000. The facilities are ITAR registered and compliant.
